Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

Information that I have suggests that the Universal Service Fund fees charged to telephone companies / users is changing to a "flat fee" method of calculation. My understanding is that a user of $50 in services with pay the same amount as a user of $5,000 in services.

This may be way over simplified, but if there is any shred of "truth" here, I certainly would recommend that you find a way to share the burden on a more equitable basis.

I would be interested in hearing the "logic" that proponents of the "flat fee" proposal are espousing. If you can direct me to a source of such information I would appreciate it.

Sincerely,

Albert Nelson
